Stay and Read

Before the end of last term our parents joined our children in Reception to support with the children's reading and learn more about how we support reading in Early Years.

27 Trainee Teachers spend a Week at New City

This whole week, New City hosted 27 trainee teachers from the London District East Teaching School who learnt about developing their teaching and learning strategies with a particular focus on assessment for learning. Throughout the week, they learnt about research driven assessment for learning strategies which they then implemented in a classroom setting. All the trainees went away having learnt lots and commented on how wonderful and hard-working our pupils are and how they were amazed by their subject knowledge and resilience to never give -up.

Language of the Term

In assembly Hakeemat and Naheem launched the Language of the Term which is Yoruba. We hope that the children will learn a couple of phrases including 'good morning' and 'good afternoon' by the end of the term

Raising funds for our Food Bank and Uniform Store

In order to help our families we have opened a food bank and uniform store but we do require funds to keep this going. All donations can be made via food and uniform as well as donating to our Just Giving Page that can be found on our website. Thank you for all your ongoing support.

Mr Freeland's Book Review

Bork

Did you know that in English we think dogs say "woof", but in French, dogs say "ouaf ouaf", in German they say "wau, wau" and in Japanese they say "wan-wan"? In this charming picture book, one dog maintains that the right way to woof is to say "bork". Desperate to persuade the international cast of dogs that think their way is the right way, it's an uphill task until a cat arrives, and all the dogs unite to bork at it. Rhys Kitson's book has a very simple premise which is executed incredibly well. As well as highlighting interesting different dog sounds from around the world, which little ones will love to imitate, the overall message is that there's more that unites us than divides us. Even though children are quite little at 4 or 5 to understand how difference and unity work in the world, they can absolutely understand that it's nice for all the dogs to work together.

Bikeability

Just before the holidays our Year 5 children who took part on Bikeability were presented with their certificates for completing the course! Well done everyone!
